

ABSTRACT

Methods of making and using microarrays of biological materials

The invention relates to methods of making arrays of anti-ligands for use in the analysis of ligands. Preferred ligands are proteins and preferred anti-ligands are antibodies, or antigen-binding variants or derivatives thereof. The microarrays of the invention provide a convenient means for analysing differential protein expression in cells.

09811075-031601